How Many Will There Be?

That there will be an important representation of supporters of the New National Policy in the next Parliament is certain. How many of them there will be is to every Canadian, whether a farmer or a dweller in town or city, who stands for progressive principles, a question which is causing serious thought. The upholders of the New National Policy elected to the next Parliament would not need to be very numerous to bring some of the reforms desired by Canadian progressives well on the way.

Even a small progressive group, free to speak out the truth and to advocate economic and other reforms, regardless of corporate influence or party fund control, could energize the House at Ottawa with new life. All this is undeniable. But to repeat the question which is forcing itself upon public attention, How many supporters of the New National Policy are there going to be in the next Parliament?

This question brings every Canadian man and woman face to face with his, and her, duty of working faithfully and steadfastly to help to make progressive principles prevail. Every one who believes truly and earnestly in the New National Policy and is a real democrat will realize in the fullest measure that the responsibility for securing good government rests upon every individual citizen.

Every Canadian man and woman bears that responsibility, and cannot shirk it or evade it. Nothing has been more truly said than that the extent to which the individual citizen is indifferent and apathetic and ignores his responsibility is the extent to which there will be bad government.

Things Have Changed

The Waterloo of partyism in the Ontario general elections left the old-time politicians stunned. The succeeding events have left them more and more paralyzed with amazement. That Premier Drury should succeed in forming a strong Cabinet is astounding to them; but even more astounding is the fact made public by Premier Drury that not a single one of his supporters approached him, either directly or indirectly, with a request to be included in the Cabinet.

This is flabbergasting to the individuals to whom party politics have heretofore been their main business. No less flabbergasting is the fact that the organized farmers, East and West, are giving practical proof of their conviction that the necessary money for election campaign expenses should be put up by the electors.

Straightforward Premier Drury

This is flabbergasting to the individuals to straightforward honesty and genuine patriotism of this utterance by Ontario's new Farmer-Premier: "I am not much of a hand to about patriotism." These words from the head of a government in this country is enough to make many dead politicians sit up in their graves in amazement that a man in public life should be so strangely lacking in knowledge of the elementary principles of statesmanship, as they understood that art.

And there are Canadian politicians who are not less dead, but as yet not thoroughly aware of the fact, to whom such an utterance is not less amazing. They are finding it hard to realize that a new era is beginning in Canada, an era which to them is nothing short of an incomprehensible nightmare. The world must seem to them to have been turned topsy turvy when they read such an utterance of Premier Drury's as, for example, this: "We will make hard the way of the partisan, and we will make easy the way of the man who wants the good of the country and not the good of his party."

The new Canadianism is sizing up the old-time politicians at their true value. The people are going to be in control, not the politicians. The people must realize that it is up to them not only to obtain control, but to maintain it. Only by doing so can they really establish the new era and have it endure. Only thus will old-time politics and politicians, party funds, patriotic platitudes, and flag-waving and other dodges and devices of electioneering demagogues, with profiteering and other plundering of the public as the ultimate purpose of their hackwork, become no more than evil memories of a vanished past.

For All Canadians

Says the Ottawa Citizen:—

The platform of the Canadian Council of Agriculture is a platform for city dwellers, artisans, and tradespeople, quite as much as for farmers.

No candid person who reads the Farmers' Platform through can fail to make the same declaration as the Ottawa Citizen. The aims which the policies advocated in that platform seek to achieve command themselves to every Canadian who wants equal rights to all and is opposed to special privilege and plundering of the public.

All Canadians who desire to see changes made in Canada's fiscal policy and in other public policies now in operation, which are not for the greatest good of the greatest number of Canadians are in spirit and in purpose supporters of the Farmers' Platform. The things advocated in that platform are as beneficial and indeed as essential to the dwellers in the towns and cities as they are to the farmer population of Canada, if our country is to have true prosperity and true development of its welfare, which can be based only upon just relations being established between all classes of the people.

This has been set forth convincingly in the addresses made by Mr. Crerar during the past week in Brandon, Regina, Moose Jaw, and Saskatoon. The platform set forth, after careful thought upon the national problems of our country, by the Canadian Council of Agriculture, is not at all a class platform. There is evidence in every line of it that it is a platform for the whole Canadian people.

As to the Business Profits Tax

Income tax assessment notices are being sent out through the mail. Each contains a notification that if the income tax is not paid within a month of the date of its mailing, an addition of five per cent. will be made as a penalty, and for every added month of delay an added one per cent. This is a businesslike way of going about the collection of public revenue.

But how about the business profits tax? Is it being collected with anything like the same rigorous vigor? How much of it is in arrears? There is a mysterious lack of information for the public from Ottawa in regard to business profits taxation. The whole subject is shrouded in an official fog of concealment.

The people of Canada have the right to demand that the daylight of publicity be let in on this whole matter. They have the right to know all about it. It is their business. If it is not being rightly attended to they are entitled to know just how laxly and inefficiently it is being dealt with.

There should be published by the Dominion Government an annual blue book, giving the names of all individuals, firms and companies on whom business profits taxation is levied, with the amount collected from each. This would be a highly valuable blue book, in more ways than one. It is one of the many greatly needed applications of publicity to the public business.

The U.S. Senate and the Treaty

We Canadians have enough to be ashamed of in our own Senate to be able to sympathize with the mass of right-thinking people in the United States, whose attitude in regard to the action of the Senate at Washington in barking the Peace Treaty is dealt with in an editorial in the New York World, which closes with these words:—

In reactionary Germany there is hope and in England, France and Italy and many small nations not yet sure of deliverance there is fear that the United States Senate has killed the League of Nations. Has that been the purpose of Senator Lodge and his followers all along? When the Republican leader of the Senate was asked on Saturday if he thought the treaty as interpreted and amended would be rejected, he answered in the affirmative. "Then the treaty is dead!" was the rejoinder, to which his reply was, "Undoubtedly."

If that be true, something besides the treaty has perished in the United States, something more important even than the treaty. We have lost courage, confidence, and resource; we have made the Declaration of Independence parochial instead of universal, and we have withdrawn selfishly and afraid from complications that never can be settled without our help. To have fought a costly war to a victorious end only to run away in panic from the problems of peace is not like the United States, but, thanks to partyism and cowardice in the Senate, that is the record as it stands.

The constitution of the United States requires for the ratification of a treaty a two-thirds vote of the senators present when the question of its ratification is voted upon in that chamber. This recent action of the Senate is no new thing in United States history. When the arbitration treaties, negotiated by John Hay, who was Secretary of State under President Roosevelt, met with similar treatment in the Senate prompted by similarly unworthy motives, Mr. Hay said: "A treaty goes to the Senate like a bull going into a Spanish bull ring."

The men and the influences responsible for the barking of the Peace Treaty are the same men and influences that are most strongly identified with high tariff protection in the United States. They stand for economic and social injustice at home in their own country, and for a short-sighted, selfish nationalism abroad, which one of the leading papers in the United States speaks of as being "comparable in many ways to the old Prussianism." Next month, when both Houses of Congress will be in special session again another effort will be made to secure the ratification of the Peace Treaty.

The Centralizing of Money

On Monday night of last week the figures of the Victory Loan drive, as received by telegraph from all parts of the Dominion, were read out by Sir Henry Drayton, the Minister of Finance, to an audience assembled in Massey Hall, in Toronto. It is interesting to note that the amount which it was announced Ontario had invested, $354,824,500, was nearly eighteen times as much as Saskatchewan's $20,000,000, and that Toronto's part of Ontario's investment, $146,379,600, was more than seven times Saskatchewan's total. And yet Ontario's population is only five times the population of Saskatchewan; and nobody will deny that the people of Saskatchewan, in proportion to their ability to do so, put their money into Victory Bonds no less enthusiastically than the people of Ontario.

The explanation of the enormous preponderance of the Ontario figures over those of the other Provinces, is, of course, that in Ontario are situated Toronto and others of the centres of Canada to which money is drawn by centripetal attraction, this result being produced by the operation of the financial and mercantile systems of this country. These systems work to produce a result contrary to that produced in the working of a cream separator, which, instead of drawing the cream in, sends it out from the centre by centrifugal force.

In Toronto, for example, are situated the head offices of many of the leading insurance, mortgage and investment and other financial corporations, as well as of many of the largest manufacturing industries protected by the tariff. Into these offices pour tributary streams of money from all over Canada. In the matter of investing in Victory Bonds practically all these concerns have made all, or practically all, their investments from their head offices, instead of distributing them up as coming from their branch offices all over the country. And so these sums appear in the published lists as coming from Toronto.

Hidden Streams

In connection with the announced total amounts invested from each of the Provinces in the 1919 Victory Loan, it would be interesting and instructive if all the investments could be analyzed so as to show the little trickles and streams of money rising out of productive industry all over Canada and flowing together to form larger streams, which join their flow later and finally all go into the Dominion treasury, in return for the Victory Bonds. In like manner it would be enlightening if it could actually be seen how the wealth created in Canada by the work of the many is drawn by the operation of the protective system through devious channels from which an unjustly large part of it is siphoned off into the private reservoirs of the privileged few. But these operations are not spread before public view. They are hidden under the surface of things.

Some Washington Figures

The interests opposed to public ownership in both this country and the United States are unstinting in their provision of money to keep the propaganda against public ownership going in both countries. Printer's ink in great abundance is being used in Canadian and United States newspapers to make it appear that the government operation of the railways in the United States is a failure. Naturally, the propagandists do not give publicity to such facts as that the official statement issued last week at Washington showed that the United States government administration of the railways realized a profit of $3,391,419 during September.

The final figures for that month showed that the net operating income was $77,000,395, while the government guarantee of interest and dividends aggregated $74,352,978. Operating revenue totalled $492,442,654, an increase of $9,765,687 over the same month a year ago. Operating expenses increased to $393,854,080, or $28,921,647 higher than September, 1918.

It must be kept in mind that the system in the United States is government operation, not public ownership, of the railways, which were taken over as a war measure, with a government guarantee of dividends to the bondholders and shareholders.

Soon Canada will be the unhappy owner of all the unprofitable railways in this fair Dominion. The annual financial loss will be heavy, but the annual profit of the Canadian Pacific Railway is equal to the losses on all the government "lame ducks." The reasonable and sensible thing for the government to do is to take over the Canadian Pacific Railway and have a profitable railway system.

The System of Partyism, and What the Farmers Get Out Of It

A Better System, and What Special Privilege & Co. Will Get Out Of It

Democracy in the Cradle

The New Political Movement and Some Considerations on Its Future Development—By E. A. Partridge

THERE is great unrest in Canada. It is due to the dissatisfaction of the many with the conditions of life which surround them. "The High Cost of Living," is a phrase found on the lips of everybody today, the fact of which high cost is given as explanation for the general unrest. A better phrasing, however, would be, "The Low Quality of Life"—not low as compared with what it has been in the past but as compared with what with a snuer organization of society it is easily possible for it to be in the present.

Progress in the arts, application of science to the production of the means of life, invention of machinery multiply a thousand-fold the power of mankind over nature, discovery of inexhaustible sources of wealth, the triumphs over time and space, the wonderful organization and co-ordination of industry, have made noble standards of living possible for all, were society properly ordered. This present time should give all the people comfort and security for their aged; the work of wealth production and distribution should be carried on by the healthy and robust under ideal conditions as to equipment, physical environment and social relationships; and to their young it should give opportunity to be reared under conditions assuring healthful, carefree, happy childhood, and a training, with the utmost of care and skill for the business of life and the expansion of their powers for useful work and for enjoyment of existence to the full.

Co-operative Effort

The unrest has exhibited itself in four ways:—

First.—In co-operative effort.

There have been two forms of co-operation: (a) Commercial co-operation or co-operation in distribution; (b) Industrial co-operation or co-operation in production.

Distributive co-operation fails because its economies only start after the great steal has been accomplished, in the case of commodities produced by others, such as lumber and coal. The private ownership of the timber lands and the coal deposits has permitted an enhancement of price unrelated to cost of production but added to it. There has been capitalization of privilege to monopolize things which should never have ceased to belong to the public domain.

In the case of commodities produced by co-operators, we have class monopoly and price-fixing of an arbitrary nature, putting one occupational group into antagonistic relation with other groups or with the public.

Industrial co-operation often fails for want of access to raw materials, lack of machinery, satisfactory buildings or sites. It also suffers from the hostility of big business interests assailing it in its infancy.

Industrial Strikes

Second.—In industrial strikes.

The strike method has been elaborated of late by the introduction of the "Sympathetic Strike" and "One Big Union" idea. The craft strike, which confined itself to the members of the craft seeking redress of some grievance, found itself beaten by the ability of employers to secure scab labor, or to suspend operations till the strikers were starved into submission. The sympathetic strike sought to induce such a wide suspension of labor as to make the general public uncomfortable enough to cause them to bring moral pressure to bear upon employers to meet the wishes of the strikers and terminate the undesired discomfort of the community.

The One Big Union, which seeks to make the grievance of one group of labor the occasion for a universal strike, is in essence a proposal to render the present organization of society impossible of continuance. It is, in short, revolutionary in aim. The sympathetic strike is unjust in that it inflicts greater suffering upon the innocent public than the guilty employers of labor. The One Big Union is not necessarily wrong because it proposes revolution in the organization of society, but because revolution as a result of direct action, of compulsion of the majority by a minority holding extreme views, being sudden in consummation would involve a period of disorganization and anarchy which would have terrible consequences for the vast majority of the people before society could be reconstituted upon lines of greater economic justice.

The origin of the strike in its later forms, as a direct action method of obtaining results, may be looked for in the hopelessness with which organized labor has come to regard constitutional methods as a means for obtaining redress for their grievances.

With the organization of society generally for political action along democratic lines may come a restoration of hope that may lead to the abandonment of the strike as a method of reform and the adoption of the ballot in its stead as a weapon more dangerous to the capitalistic enemy and safer to the users and the mere friends.

Political Action

Third.—In Political action by a class or vocational group for class or vocational advantage.

Attempts at political action vocational groups or classes having obvious community or economic interest have been made, but are not liable to lead to a permanent improvement in social or economic conditions as the selfish quality of the legislation sought to be obtained makes for strife and dissension between and among those whose interests, properly understood, are identical. There is a common enemy of all those who are functioning usefully in society, namely, those who are enjoying the good things created by social effort without contributing to the production of these.

Democratic Organization

Fourth.—In organization along broad democratic lines for political action.

There is a fourth manifestation of unrest taking form as a political movement along broad democratic lines, that seeks to unite all the socially-useful elements of society to secure control of the legislative and administrative machinery and use it for the well-being and advantage of society as a whole. Such a movement has come into existence in Western Canada. The organized farmers of the three western provinces have decided that the time is ripe for the employment of constitutional methods to right economic wrongs. Distrusting the party system as a means for the accomplishment of their purpose, they have revolted against it. The opponents of this democratic revolution; that is, the politicians, the hide-bound partisans, their docile followers, and their masters, the interests, have sought to discredit the movement by dubbing it a class movement and a vocational one, having for its object the economic advantage of a class, establishment of class rule in the interest of one group of workers, and at the expense of all others. As a matter of fact, so far as Western Canada is concerned, the movement can scarcely be said to be born. It may be described as "Democracy in the Cradle."

Little democracy has not yet learned to walk; it is still inarticulate; it has not yet resolved its baptismal name. Members of the Canadian Council of Agriculture may be described as its godfathers and godmothers; it is they who will decide by what name it shall be known; they who will teach it to talk; and they who will guide its tottering footsteps on the path that it should take. Though an infant now and, with somewhat of an infant's quaveringness, it will, ere long, be a lusty young Hercules, ready for the labor which only the strength of a Hercules may cope with.

To Better Conditions

To abandon the metaphor, the movement which is coming into being and taking form among us is, or should be, instructed to become a democratic movement, entirely divorced from class interest, except as that interest is the common interest of the great body of our people. This movement is a revolt against the party system as we have it in Canada, for the sufficient reason that such party system has proved itself to be entirely inadequate for the task of improving, by legislative means, the unsatisfactory conditions under which the great majority of our people are now living.

Party government has been and remains the instrument whereby the many are governed by the few for the benefit of the few. While the parties have alternated in the possession of legislative power without appreciable difference in the conditions of life experienced by the many, the public domain has continued to be given away to further enrich an already rich exploiting class, or reward their hirelings in parliament, and our natural resources have thus become the chief source of monopoly of opportunity, and consequent extortion by those supplying the everyday needs of the people. Such extortion yielding enormous profits and creating great and dangerous aggregations of capital and consolidations of commercial and industrial enterprises still further menace the general well-being by destroying the competition which has hitherto been relied upon to keep prices of commodities in proper relation to cost of production. The two parties have, without distinction, thus abused their tenure of office by enriching individuals at the public expense. For every Rogers on one side, there will be found a Rifton on the other.

Monopolistic Tyranny

Let it be emphasized—the tremendous advance in the cost of living is primarily due to monopolistic ownership of natural resources. From this comes great aggregation of capital and great consolidation of ownership of commercial and industrial enterprises strong enough to destroy all small competitors and permit the obtaining of arbitrary and extortionate prices for the commodities which these enterprises control, which now include nearly every necessary article of everyday use or consumption.

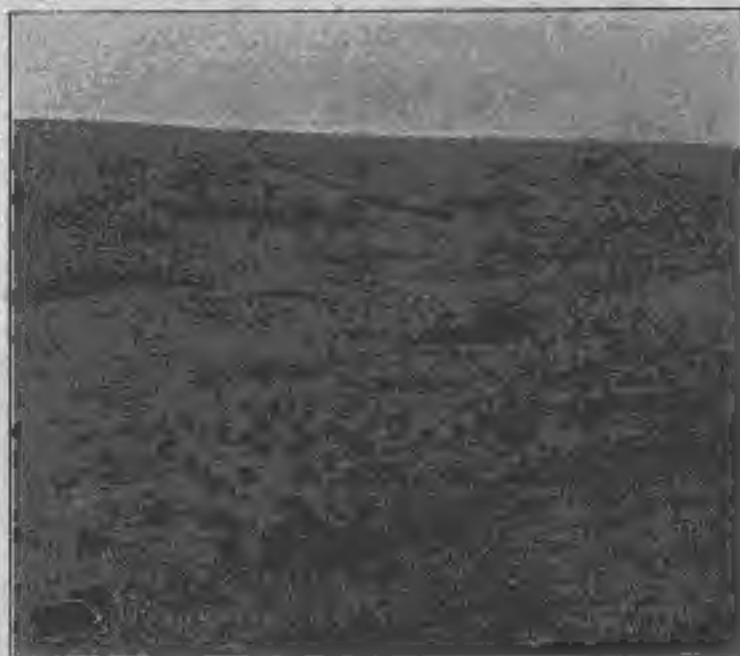

The two-party system has divided the great body of the people into two hostile camps, regardless of the fact of their community of economic interest, much the greater portion of either party consisting of people whose economic interests are identical, but who have been induced to align themselves under different party names and engage in a senseless political battle with one another. Both of these parties have the same elements in that both are offered and organized by professional politicians who are the hirelings of the big interests.

It is true that the organized farmers are the nucleus of this new democratic movement, hence there is some excuse for the prevalence of the statement that this is a farmers' class movement. The farmers have taken the lead in this simply because they were the most numerous well-organized body in Western Canada; also they were provided with a coordinating body in the Canadian Council of Agriculture, the duties of which was to deal with the problem of educating the farmers for political action, that is, fitting them for the discharge of their duties as citizens. In their original constitution one of the objects was described to me:—

"To organize the farm population of the Dominion for the study of social and economic problems having a bearing upon the happiness and material prosperity of the people."

The Spear-point

The farmers are eminently fitted to be what they will become, the spear-point of the great democratic drive soon to be launched against the strongholds of privilege, the outer defenses of which is the party system of government. They, however, in their announced objective, which is the platform prepared by the Canadian Council of Agriculture, are working for such ends as clearly indicate that their object is the accomplishment of national reform and the advancement of the common weal, rather than the serving of class or vocational interest. They welcome as their allies all those who live and desire to live by useful labor, that is to say, who perform some necessary function in the serving of society, supplying some need of civilized living; rightly understood. There is little difference in the needs of those who are functioning usefully in society but almost complete community of economic interest; the one group with complete community of interest embraces all those who live and desire to live by useful labor, whether of hand or brain, whether in field or factory. They particularly welcome as their allies those who follow intellectual pursuits, and whose mental training has fitted them

Active Christianity Will Mend the World

THE United National Campaign—representing the co-operative feature of the simultaneous, but independent, Forward Movements of the Anglican, Baptist, Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian communions invites all followers of our common Lord and Master to pray earnestly for the peace and well-being of Canada and the world, and for a renewal of the Christian spirit of sacrifice and service.

Thirteen National Conventions

Thirteen National Conventions are about to assemble at the call of the United National Campaign. The dates arranged, and the places of meeting here follow:—

November 24th and 25th	Toronto and Montreal.
November 25th and 26th	Montreal and Moose Jaw.
November 26th and 27th	Regina.
November 27th and 28th	Saskatoon.
December 1st and 2nd	Edmonton and St. John.
December 2nd and 3rd	Calgary, London and Halifax.
December 4th and 5th	Charlottetown and Vancouver.

The Objects of the Conventions

1. To give thanks to God for Victory.
2. To rouse the Canadian people to a keener sense of their religious privileges and national responsibilities.
3. To stimulate the practice of prayer for individual and national needs at this difficult period.
4. To re-affirm the principle that the Gospel of Christ is the only cure for those conditions which produced the world war, and the only foundation for ensuring national stability, social welfare and individual happiness in the day of peace.

The Reason for United Action

His Grace, the Archbishop of Canterbury, preached the opening sermon of the Church Congress held at Leicester, England, on October 14th, 1919. On that occasion, he said:—

"We ought to be able to make more of the real oneness, which, thank God, is already ours, the oneness, both in faith and in potential action, of all who can and do kneel to Christ as their living Lord. We want to dwell upon and foster the power of that fellowship for united . . . impact upon the world, or penetration of the world, at an hour so inexpressibly difficult as this. That need not, it will not, interfere with complete loyalty to the distinctive truths, which in our smaller circles within the Church of God we conscientiously hold dear."

"The corporate life which belongs definitely to our own Churchmanship claims our whole-hearted allegiance. But that allegiance acquires an element of peril if it becomes so disproportioned as to obliterate or mar our loyalty to the larger whole, the Christian fellowship, the God-guided life and energy of all who profess and call themselves Christians."

to grapple with the more intricate problems involved in the establishing of equitable human relationships, throughout the whole fabric of society.

Suggests a Name

It must not be forgotten that this movement has, so far, not been supplied with a name. It is very desirable that this name should be highly significant of the breadth and direction of the movement. Perhaps the most appropriate name which could be given would be "The Commonwealth Party," that is, the party which has for the purpose the securing of the welfare of the community. Other terms, such as the "Social Service Party," or the "Social Welfare Party," might be adopted, but they have already been appropriated by movements which are not political in character and the employment of them might lead to confusion or be resented by those who have employed them, or approximate to them, as designations of other groupings of people.

The name "Commonwealth" is suggestive of common wealth, and that in turn suggests the successful revolt in earlier times against autocracy, monopoly, special privilege, favoritism and corruption in government. Commonwealth moreover suggests the organized effort which this movement will manifest to regain much of the lost common heritage of natural resources once included in the public domain, to inaugurate public ownership and operation of public utilities such as the means of transportation, the medium of exchange, and even to provide for the creation of state-owned instruments of production of the necessities of life, whenever by reason of the entrenched position of the big interests this may prove the only way of restoring quality in production and fairness in price making.

Public ownership and operation of public utilities have been discredited by failure under the old party system, which has represented big business interests and not the public interest. With the establishment of truly representative government, the most important public utility of all, namely, the instrument of government itself, will be publicly owned and controlled and responsive to public desire will operate all other public utilities in the public interest. A study of democracy in action in New Zealand and Australia might furnish many useful hints for the direction of our own young democratic movement.

Canada's Who's Who and Why

It would be difficult to imagine a book of more immediate interest to more people in Canada, or one of greater actual value for reference purposes than the 1919-1920 edition of Who's Who and Why, which is in every way larger and better than its predecessors. This annual reference book has made an established place for itself. The edition which has just come from the presses of its publishers, the International Press Ltd., Toronto, is an excellent example of up-to-date book-making. It contains some 1,800 biographical sketches of Canadians who are active and prominent in the life and work of Canada. Many of the sketches are accompanied by portraits. In turning over its pages one cannot fail to be struck anew by the fact that a very large proportion of the necessary information in regard to current affairs is necessarily information about persons. Of such information in regard to living persons of importance in Canada, from Cape Breton to Nanaimo, there is a satisfactorily complete and well-arranged supply between the covers of this book.

Gould's Majority 5,234

The official result of the by-election in the constituency of Assinibois, Saskatchewan, was announced last week by the Returning Officer, A. C. Hill. The total number of votes polled for Gould were 7,712, and for Motherwell, 2,478, giving Gould a majority of 5,234. Motherwell loses the $200 deposit which is forfeited to the government because he did not poll half as many votes as Gould.

Nespeck Farm

Near Stratford, Ont.

Dear Sirs—

The Delco-Light Plant you sold me to light my farm has been a great success. It has given me light in all our buildings, but is rapidly paying for itself in the work it does.

It is well known that a farmer who has a good light plant can do more work in less time than one who does not. I have found this to be true in my case. I have been able to do more work in less time than I could before.

We have never figured this work down to so many hours per day, but we do know that we can operate the farm with one less man than we used to. I have saved out the wages and board of a farm hand and you can see what the Delco-Light plant has done for me.

We used to run a gas engine on the milker and cream separator at a cost of 10 cents a day. Our Delco-Light plant supplying light and power for the whole farm costs only 7 cents a day.

It would not only be a harder proposition to run our farm without Delco-Light, but it would also be a harder proposition to run our farm with Delco-Light. I have found this to be true in my case.

Yours truly

(Signed) W. W. Ballantyne

Scare headlines in the newspapers lead you to think that Canada will suffer on account of the Coal Strike in the United States. There would be no need to freeze if the American Miners were on strike all winter. Alberta Coal can more than supply every need for the whole of Western Canada.

Buy Alberta Coal

Keep Your Money in Home Circulation

One of the strongest features of the Victory Loan Campaign is that the money will be spent in Canada. Buy Alberta Coal this winter and follow this same principle in buying your supply of Coal.

Alberta Coal is clean and satisfactory. It must satisfy every fair minded user.

COAL

The standard heat unit adopted in coal tests is what is known as British Thermal Units B.T.U. There is only one way to buy coal and that is to get the greatest number of B.T.U.s for every dollar commensurate with quick ignition and staying power. Besides being high in volatile matter and fixed carbon Midland Coal contains 14,120 B.T.U. in every pound of coal.

UNITED GRAIN GROWERS
The Organized Farmer in Business

A Fist Full of Money

Don't let it hide the real value of your stock

When the local buyer or drover "shakes his money in your face" it is hard not to be affected by the sight of a handful of money. It looks more than it is and at the same time what you have to sell seems to shrink in value.

Farmers have lost tens of thousands of dollars through this trait of human nature. You don't need to be ashamed of it because it seems to be universal.

For many years farmers have been losing money because of this trait of human nature. Every year thousands of farmers lose very large sums because the immediate payment in cash to the local buyer or drover hides the real value of their stock. They could have by waiting a few days.

There is, of course, no argument about the value of a farmer shipping livestock to market and getting on the market will give for them. Everyone knows that yet thousands of farmers lose money because they are affected by the sight of a handful of money. They are not strong enough to resist those two tendencies will find that his strength pays in real money.

Before farmers began to organize for co-operative shipping, only the farmer who owned a car could ship his stock. The others were dependant on the local buyer. Now that co-operative shipping has made the market accessible to every farmer, the movement is making great headway. Every year thousands of cars more than the last year are shipped. As the movement grows, one farmer after another is adopting the modern method.

Next time you have stock to sell ship them. Ship them co-operatively if you haven't a full car of your own. Shut your eyes to the "fist full of money" the local buyer or drover shows you. Ship them to the market, giving you their full market value. When you get your cheque just calculate how much better off you are.

Then you will know what this warning means.

life in the United States, and who has made a special study of the foreign market, says that the grain grower in this country will find it profitable to export his surplus wheat to Europe.

Where Unskilled Labor Falls

When the machine was introduced in the United States, it was a great help to the farmer, but it was also a great help to the employer. The farmer who had a large family of children to support, and who had to work long hours, found that the machine was a great help to him. He could now produce more wheat in less time, and he could sell his surplus wheat at a profit. The employer, on the other hand, found that the machine was a great help to him. He could now employ fewer men to do the same work, and he could pay them less.

DO YOU REMEMBER

how last year we said and every expert everybody in the fur trade that there was no market conditions which would keep prices many times higher than the prices of 1918. But at all the big fur shows of the world have increased from 1918 to 1919.

We have had we believe what we advised you to do. We purchased direct from the trappers from all parts of Canada large quantities of the best and most suitable raw furs that could be had.

Oh, do you remember how and how we said that we had the fur show and how we said that the fur show was up.

All these quotations were based on the fact that the fur show was up. But the fur show was not up.
The fur show was not up. The fur show was not up.

Therefore we have in our warehouse large quantities of good raw furs at prices that are low.

We have made these up into the latest styles, and now able to offer them to you at

25% to 50% LOWER PRICES

than if they were made from Raw Fur when bought at most recent prices.

In addition, by our policy of selling direct from trapper to wearer you avoid the middleman's profit. And that means 25%.

Further, by rendering the entire service of making up the fur into the latest styles, we are able to save you time and trouble and give you the quality of the fur show at a price that beats up the fur show.

The following table shows the results of the analysis of the data obtained from the experiments. The table is divided into two main sections: 'Analysis of the data' and 'Results of the analysis'. The first section contains a list of the data points, and the second section contains the results of the analysis.

The results of the analysis show that the data points are consistent with the theoretical model. The analysis also shows that the data points are consistent with the experimental results. The results of the analysis are summarized in the following table:

 Food Milk Producers are Co-operating to Secure a Fair

The Food Milk Producers are co-operating to secure a fair price for the milk they produce. They are doing this by pooling their resources and selling their milk as a single unit. This will enable them to negotiate with the processors on a more equal basis and to secure a fair price for their milk.

What Is the Business of the Church?—By Rev. H. D. Rahn.

I have been thinking much lately of the church and its business. It is a question that arises, what is the business of the church? How can we make the church a place where the people can find the life that is in Christ? The church is not a building, it is a living organism. It is the body of Christ, and it is the body of the people. It is the place where we can find the life that is in Christ, and it is the place where we can find the life that is in the people. The church is the place where we can find the life that is in Christ, and it is the place where we can find the life that is in the people. The church is the place where we can find the life that is in Christ, and it is the place where we can find the life that is in the people.

to be the business of the church is to be the business of the church. It is the business of the church to be the business of the church. It is the business of the church to be the business of the church. It is the business of the church to be the business of the church.

It is the business of the church to be the business of the church. It is the business of the church to be the business of the church. It is the business of the church to be the business of the church. It is the business of the church to be the business of the church.

The church is the place where we can find the life that is in Christ, and it is the place where we can find the life that is in the people. The church is the place where we can find the life that is in Christ, and it is the place where we can find the life that is in the people. The church is the place where we can find the life that is in Christ, and it is the place where we can find the life that is in the people. The church is the place where we can find the life that is in Christ, and it is the place where we can find the life that is in the people.

Watch Your Stock— It Pays!

THE condition of your stock depends—not on how much food you give them—but on the amount of nutriment they are able to extract from that food.

If you have some stock—a horse, a batch of hogs or a cow or two that are not thriving or showing the benefit of their feed, are out-of-condition and unthrifty, the use of International Stock Food Tonic, as directed, for a few weeks will show a remarkable change.

INTERNATIONAL STOCK FOOD TONIC

has proved itself to be just what stock needs to put them into a thrifty, healthy condition and keep them that way. It costs little—3 feeds for 1 cent—it does much. Keeps your stock in a paying condition.

For Horses—

When your horses become unthrifty, sluggish in appearance, rough, hide-bound, coats dry and dead, stocked in laths—it's time to give them International Stock Food Tonic. This Tonic will enable the animals to throw off these ailments quickly by setting digestive organs in proper shape and helping them to supply rich, red blood.

For Cows—

For the every-day feeding of dairy cows, and to fatten cattle, International Stock Food Tonic is rated as the one and only preparation. It is composed of the best-known ingredients to promote perfect digestion and to assist the body organs to perform that perfect assimilation which is the secret of milk-making and fattening. By feeding International, you can increase the quantity of milk and keep your cows in a well-up, healthy condition.

For Hogs—

International Stock Food Tonic is composed of the valuable properties of herbs, roots, minerals and other digestion promoting ingredients. It gives the hogs a keen appetite and keeps them from going off their feed. Guaranteed to keep their system free from worms and prevent worm development. International Stock Food Tonic keeps the system toned up and in a clean, healthy condition. It will save you 30 days in preparing hogs for the market.

Use International Stock Food Tonic! It Pays!
